It's bad enough that hundreds of women and men working at DuPont's Teflon factory have been exposed to and carry extraordinary quantities of this insidiously toxic industrial chemical in their bodies and bloodstreams, but now their children and children in the neighbourhood may be at risk?

The response of DuPont's customarily secretive and evasive Management only raises fears and concerns! "Doesn't pose a health risk to the general public" claims DuPont's dissimulating executives and their PR con artists! What does that mean? What is "general"? Why the legalistic gobbledegook if this likely carcinogen is so innocent and perfectly SAFE as DuPont Management instructs?

...funfun..
