New Year Message

from Dean Georgia L. Narsavage

implement a world class rural health outreach program, and have been recognized by US News and World Report as having one of the best MSN programs in the United States. Our Doctor of Nursing Practice is one of the first four accredited programs in the country. External funding received by faculty to support research and education in the past three years has included major foundation support, two HRSA grants, and two NIH grants. We are searching to hire qualified candidates into the first two endowed nursing professorships at WVU, and we continue to make scholarships a priority to provide support to an ever increasing student enrollment. In 2010, the School received five new endowments to help underwrite tuition and fees.

A As the 50th anniversary year of the WVU School of Nursing comes to a close and we begin the second decade of the 21st century, I reflect on the accomplishments of our faculty and students, both past and present. Those first 50 years represent a unique and sustained history of contributions to improving the health and quality of life for those we serve. Our graduates, who still practice in every county in West Virginia, have spread across the nation and the globe, providing care for their patients that is built on the excellent education they received at WVU.

Our school has distinguished itself in many ways. From the beginning the School of Nursing was known for innovation by implementing the "West Virginia Plan." We have worked with faculty from other disciplines at the Health Sciences Center to create and

I am proud to share our accomplishments with you. None of this would have happened without our dedicated faculty and staff, and the generosity of our alumni and friends. There is a saying that "mighty oaks from little acorns grow." I can think of no better analogy than this. From the beginning, when there were two faculty members and 21 students, until today with 88 faculty and nearly 1,000 students enrolled in the School of Nursing, our tree has grown to a large, strong oak. As we begin a new year and a new decade, I look forward to continuing our tradition of excellence, and I am grateful for the opportunity to lead the School of Nursing into the next 50 years! Best wishes for a healthy, happy new year in 2011.

Sincerely,

Georgia L. Narsavage, PhD, RN, FAAN
Dean and Professor
