

WVU Health Sciences Center Faculty Development Program Faculty Development Presentation via Zoom

Leveraging Your Strengths as an Academic Leader

We are pleased to offer a 90 minute faculty development workshop on Strengths-based Leadership for HSC faculty. Participation in this program will involve identifying your most natural talents, which are considered your greatest potential for excellence. In understanding your top talents, you can then focus on intentionally leveraging them in many areas of your life, personal and professional.

SESSION OBJECTIVES

Following this knowledge-based program, participants should be able to:

- Identify their distinct talents and strengths and communicate with others about them.
- Identify how they can maximize contributions in their own professional life by leveraging strengths.
- Develop a plan to invest in Strengths to maximize your contribution to your team.
- Explain different approaches to Strategic Thinking, Relationship Building, Influencing and Getting Things Done using the Strengths model.

This workshop will be led by

Julie Lockman, PhD

Director of Faculty Affairs, Culture and Inclusion; HSC Office of Academic Affairs
Assistant Vice President for Graduate Education; HSC Office of Research and Graduate Education

in conjunction with

Gina Baugh, PharmD

Director of Inter-Professional Education; Clinical Associate Professor, School of Pharmacy

and

Jennifer Knight-Davis, MD, FACS

Associate Professor, Acute Care Surgery and Surgical Critical Care, Surgery, School of Medicine

West Virginia University, Morgantown, WV

Please contact Dr. Lockman with any questions that you have about the session.

Wednesday, February 10, 2021, 12:00 noon to 1:30 pm

Via the Zoom platform

This session is limited to 20 participants so please register as soon as possible to provide time for preparation which includes a pre session assessment which will be sent to the 20 who register in advance.
